

Dangerous Obsession

by N J Crisp

5th - 14th December 2019

Dangerous Obsession is a well-written psychological thriller by the late N J Crisp, on whom more information has been expertly compiled by our own Paul Tomkies and is contained in this programme.

Set in the early 1980s, in the conservatory of Mark and Sally Driscoll's house, an unexpected guest calls on them in a visit that they will never forget. The many twists and turns in this play will surprise and shock audiences right until the very last scene.

A play with a cast of three is always a challenge for cast and crew alike, and this is just that. To keep the atmosphere of suspense sustained requires a very talented cast and it has been a privilege to work with this trio.

The cast have been supported by a great team in the shape of Mic Aldington, Dawn Jones and Margaret Winson, who with our Front of House team will ensure you enjoy your experience of this thrilling production.

The Elroods' dilapidated country pile with its full complement of eccentric aristocrats, lovers and maids is invaded by photographer Chester Dreadnought, jewel thieves Capone and Wedgewood, a crazy relic hunter and, inevitably, the police. The myriad doors into and out of the baronial hall in which it is set and cases of mistaken identity make the chaotic farce that ensues unavoidable.
